

Chapter 1: The Nature of Science

Section 3: Communicating with Graphs

Graph: visual display of information or data

Line graphs: shows a relationship where the dependent variable changes due to a change in the independent variable

Bar graphs: useful for comparing information or displaying data that does not change continuously

Circle graphs (also called a pie chart): used to show how some fixed quantity is broken into parts

